Customer information POP Regulation 2019/2021 EU persistent organic pollutants

Dear Sir or Madam

Persistent organic pollutants (POP) are organic substances that are only degraded or converted very slowly in the environment.

POPs include a number of pesticides (e.g. DDT) and industrial chemicals (e.g. polychlorinated biphenyls, PCBs) as well as the highly toxic dioxins and furans, which arise as undesirable by-products in production and combustion processes.

For this reason, attempts have been made at international level for many years to restrict or ban the production and use of certain POPs (Stockholm Convention on POPs).

The implementation of the Stockholm resolutions on the restriction and prohibition of certain POPs has been implemented in the European Union with Regulation (EC) No. 850/2004. This regulation will be replaced by the new regulation (EU) 2019/1021 of June 20, 2019.

The list of POPs (Persistent Organic Pollutants) covered by the scope of the regulation is regularly updated with new POPS. Based on the information available, RIEGLER & Co. KG assumes that the products delivered do not contain persistent and organic pollutants from the current "POP List".

In general, traces of undesirable substances—potentially present in very small quantities due to contamination—cannot be entirely ruled out in industrially manufactured products.

The information on POP-Regulation 2019/2021 EU is based on our best knowledge at the time of publication.
As we rely on information from the supplier side, we cannot accept liability for damage caused by incorrect or incomplete information from our supply partners.
